WELCOME TO SPRING IN THE SOUTH!

If you are reading this guide you have already started exploring some of the great things our area has to offer. The Dogwood Arts Trails and Gardens program started with the founding of our first Dogwood Trail back in 1955 and the program continues to thrive today as part of a larger non-profit organization called Dogwood Arts. Spread throughout all parts of our city, the 12 official trails beautifully represent the tremendous efforts and civic pride of homeowners who live along these trails. It is all mapped out and ready for your enjoyment. Simply use this guide to find a trailhead in an area you want to explore, look for the pink lines painted on the street, and follow them on your search for natural beauty.

See you on the trails and at other Dogwood Arts events this spring!

-Sherry Jenkins
Dogwood Arts, Executive Director

FEATURED TRAIL FARRAGUT

Follow the pink lines beginning at the entrance to the Fox Den community to enjoy the beauty of the Farragut Dogwood trail. Established in 2001, the trail wanders thru three distinct neighborhoods covering 7.9 miles of impeccably maintained properties. Catch a glimpse of Fox Den’s 18-hole golf course which is home to the PGA’s ‘Knoxville Open’ golf tournament, enjoy the spring flowering trees of Country Manor where you might just see a croquet tournament under way on a warm spring day at the Knoxville Croquet Club, and experience the historic charm of Village Green patterned after Colonial Williamsburg.

$5 SUGGESTED DONATION PER GARDEN

Dogwood Arts is honored that the owners of these private gardens are opening their magnificent properties to share with the public for this event. Each one is unique in design and offers a variety of plant material and special features. We hope you enjoy visiting these gardens as we celebrate another blooming spring and the region’s natural beauty.

SPRING GARDENS

WHEN: Saturday, April 13, 10:00 AM – 5:00 PM
Sunday, April 14, Noon – 5:00 PM

DR. ALAN SOLOMON
2705 Riverside Drive, Knoxville, TN 37914

Included in the Smithsonian Institution’s Archives of American Gardens, GATOP (God’s Answer To Our Prayers) features many hundreds of botanical specimens such as conifers and hollies, extensive displays of wildflowers, perennials, and groundcovers, as well as numerous water features and large marble outcroppings. Complementing this unusual garden are stainless-steel, iron, bronze, and stone sculptures. The site features one of Knoxville’s oldest marble quarries.

The Stair Gardens at Hilltop Farm were designed by noted Atlanta landscape designer Ryan Gainey (8-27-44 to 7-29-16) and Atlanta architect Marc Mosley to be integrated into the main house. The gardens and outbuildings: not only reflect the 1916 house’s original Arts and Crafts style, but also add to its stature and nobility. Ryan’s garden rooms include an asymmetrical garden, pool garden, pergola inspired by the one at Hestercombe in Somerset, England designed by renowned landscape designer Gertrude Jekyll and architect Edwin Lutyens, and demilune garden patterned after Beatrix Farrand’s Dunbarton Oaks Garden in Washington, DC. (The ellipse was later re-designed by landscape architect Alden Hopkins, who also redesigned the garden at the Blount Mansion.)

These garden rooms mirror the simple elegance of the house and induce a sense of peace, tranquility and harmony. The beauty of the house and gardens is only surpassed by the sensational view of the Smoky Mountains and the Tennessee River.

SUMMER GARDEN

WHEN: Saturday, June 1, 10:00 AM – 5:00 PM
Sunday, June 2, Noon – 5:00 PM

SAVAGE GARDEN
3237 Garden Drive, Knoxville, 37918

Savage Garden was inspired by Arthur Savage’s visit to his native England. Upon his return, he began building stone walls, ponds, arbors, and multiple follies. After many years of extensive restoration, including rebuilding stone walls and borders, constructing faithful copies of the original arbors and gates, and planting thousands of trees, shrubs, and perennials, Savage Garden is once again the kind of magical place envisioned by Arthur Savage. Early Summer highlights hundreds of blooming hydrangeas, native azaleas, and countless perennials. Savage Garden is listed on the National Registry of Historic Places.
