WELCOME TO SPRING IN THE SOUTH!

If you are reading this guide, you have already started exploring some of the great things our area has to offer. The Dogwood Arts Trails and Gardens program started back in 1955 and the program continues to thrive today as part of a larger nonprofit organization called Dogwood Arts. Spread throughout all parts of our city, the 12 official trails beautifully represent the tremendous efforts and civic pride of homeowners who live along these trails. It is all mapped out and ready for your enjoyment. Simply use this guide to find a trailhead in an area you want to explore, look for the pink lines painted on the street, and follow them on your search for natural beauty.

See you on the trails and at other Dogwood Arts events this spring!

2020 FEATURED TRAIL: SEQUOYAH HILLS

Dogwood Arts is celebrating 65 years of blooming trails by featuring the Sequoyah Hills Trail.

One of the oldest premier neighborhoods in the city, this idyllic community is home to Knoxville’s first Dogwood Trail which was established in 1955. While every season will delight you with color in Sequoyah Hills, spring rolls out the pink carpet; from abundant flowering dogwoods and spectacular landscapes to the line of ancient cherry trees along Cherokee Boulevard. Enjoy the beauty of the season in this gardener’s dreamland!

FEATURED GARDENS

Dogwood Arts is honored that the owners of these private gardens are opening their exceptional properties to share with the public for this event. Each one is unique in design and offers a variety of plant material and special features. We hope you enjoy visiting these gardens as we celebrate another blooming spring and the region’s natural beauty.

Savages Garden

BILL DOHM & PATTY COOPER
3237 Garden Drive, Knoxville, TN 37918

Savage Garden was inspired by Arthur Savage’s visit to his native England. He then began building stone walls, ponds, arbors, and multiple follies. Savage became known as “the father of rock gardening in Knoxville.” The garden is quirky and eclectic, combining multiple themes. Although the main arbors and pagoda reflect a Japanese influence, the latter is topped with a “Dutch Girl” weather vane and there are two “Irish” water towers. After many years of extensive restoration, including rebuilding stone walls and borders, constructing faithful copies of the original arbors and gates, and planting thousands of trees, shrubs, and perennials, Savage Garden is once again the kind of magical place envisioned by Arthur Savage.

Winter reveals the extensive bones, or structures, of Savage Garden and features thousands of snowdrops, daffodils, wood hyacinths, and other flowering bulbs. Savage Garden is listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

POSTPONED

GATOP
DR. ALAN SOLOMON & ANDREA CARTWRIGHT
2705 Riverside Drive, Knoxville, TN 37914

Included in the Smithsonian Institution’s Archives of American Gardens, GATOP [God’s Answer To Our Prayers] features many hundreds of botanical specimens such as conifers and hollies, extensive displays of wildflowers, perennials, and ground covers, as well as numerous water features and large marble outcroppings. Complementing this unusual garden are stainless-steel, iron, bronze, and stone sculptures. The marble loaded wagon pulled by two mules is manned by bearded twin brothers, Homer (1) and Homer (2) and adjacent to the blacksmith shop. The site features one of Knoxville’s oldest marble quarries.

A LITTLE JAPANESE INSPIRATION
DRS. GLORIA LEWIS & RUSS LANGDON
3600 Maloney Road, Knoxville, TN 37920

This garden which began with a tiny pond has evolved into a soothing retreat with a Japanese flavor. It is home to a wonderful Koi pond, a tranquil stream, Japanese maples and many evergreens. The garden opens to a beautiful vista of the Tennessee River with azaleas and iris framing the border. A companion native wildflower garden bursts with spring-time blooms of heuchera, trillium, columbine, and arisaema.

ANDERSON ESTATE
FRED & SANDRA ANDERSON
2723 Smallwood Drive, Knoxville, TN 37920
*Carpooling strongly encouraged

Set on a hilltop overlooking the Great Smoky Mountains, Anderson Estate is a plant collectors garden. This young, but ever expanding garden, features an extensive hosta collection with over 500 varieties and also includes a wide assortment of azaleas, camellias, rhododendrons, conifers and a native plant display garden. The kitchen garden with 11 raised vegetable beds, fruit trees and berries is home to four bee colonies. The property also includes a cemetery from the 1800’s and a professionally landscaped frog haven with a bubbling brook and waterfall.

ARTISTS ON LOCATION: A Plein Air Painting Event returns the third week of April 2020. Artists have an opportunity to paint outdoors over several days at sites in and around scenic Knoxville, Tennessee. We are excited that several artists will be painting on location at our Spring Featured Gardens! On Saturday, April 25th participating artists will show and sell their work at the Knoxville Museum of Art during the Art Sale & Reception 5 to 9PM. For additional information about Artists On Location visit knoxart.org.

THE PINK LINES

It's a sure sign that spring is on its way when 'the pink lines' start to appear in Knoxville neighborhoods! Large dogwood blossoms are painted on the roadways at the entrance of each trail to welcome visitors and residents to the spectacular natural beauty that awaits. Those pink lines, which have become a Knoxville tradition, lead the way thru over 85 miles of blooming landscapes. Grab your camera and hit the roads for a beautiful springtime experience!

ARTIST BIO: Kentucky native Shawn Poynter has been photographing a wide range of subjects for over two decades. After graduating with a degree in photojournalism, Shawn worked for a newspaper in Illinois, then freelanced for a few years in eastern Kentucky before landing in Knoxville in 2006.

After spending many years out in the world, Poynter has lately started exploring more work in his studio in North Knoxville. After a career working on news and editorial assignments out in the world, the idea of making and photographing compositions in an environment in which every element is controllable has an appeal.

Shawn has always looked to greats like Cartier-Bresson, Raymond Depardon, Sam Abell, and Gordon Parks, for inspiration.
From a rough frontier settlement to a grand state capital to the attractive city you see today, the history of Knoxville is a vivid tale of the trials and triumphs of a growing town and a growing nation. It’s a wild and often surprising tale marvelously told by the city’s most historic homes. From log cabins to frame houses to stately stone mansions, these seven Knoxville landmarks invite you into the past to experience the times and events that shaped them and the families who occupied them. Each is a chapter of history unto itself. And yet, together, they exemplify and celebrate the continuing pioneering spirit that created Knoxville and our great nation.
